Council for the Study of Community Colleges

An affiliated council of

Council for the Study of Community Colleges

CSCC is an affiliate of the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC). Council members include university-based researchers and community college practitioners who further scholarship on the community college enterprise.

The purposes of the Council are to:

- 1) Conduct and disseminate research pertaining to community colleges;
- 2) Serve as a forum for dialogue between university professors, graduate students, and community college practitioners who study community colleges;
- 3) Provide research and other services to the American Association of Community Colleges and its affiliate councils;
- 4) Contribute to the development of pre-service and in-service education for community college professionals;
- 5) Recognize outstanding service to, research in, and publication about community college education; and
- 6) Provide a unified and formal base of participation for CSCC members in AACC affairs.

MEMBER BENEFITS

- ◆ Annual Conference each Spring. The program offers approximately 40 sessions on community college research findings and leadership programs.
- ◆ Research Support for community college related studies is available from the Council. Requests for proposals are available on the CSCC web site (www.cscconline.org).
- ◆ Awards are made at the conference for the Dissertation of the Year, Emerging Scholar, Senior Scholar, Research, and Distinguished Service.
- ◆ Networking and Research Sharing Opportunities for graduate students, faculty and practitioners.
- ◆ Reception and Networking Opportunities at Association for the Study of Higher Education annual meeting.
