Council for the Study of Community Colleges

An affiliated council of

Council for the Study of Community Colleges

CSCC is an affiliate of the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC). Council members include university-based researchers and community college practitioners who further scholarship on the community college enterprise.

Purposes of the Council include:

- Conducting and disseminating research pertaining to community colleges;
- Serving as a forum for dialogue between university professors, graduate students, and community college practitioners who study community colleges;
- Providing research and other services to the American Association of Community Colleges and its affiliate councils;
- Contributing to the development of pre-service and in-service education for community college professionals;
- Recognizing outstanding service to, research in, and publication about community college education.

MEMBER BENEFITS

- Annual Conference each Spring. The conference provides approximately 40 peer reviewed presentations on community college research, and discussions with leaders and policy makers.
- Research Support for community college related studies is available from the Council. Requests for proposals are available on the CSCC web site (www.cscconline.org).
- Awards, including Dissertation of the Year, Emerging Scholar, Senior Scholar, Research, and Distinguished Service are available to CSCC members.
- Networking and Research Sharing Opportunities for graduate students, faculty and practitioners.
- Reception and Networking Opportunities at the Association for the Study of Higher Education annual meeting.
